DESIGNATION STATION LLC ANNOUNCES ISSUANCE OF US PATENT FOR ITS LEGAL DEPOSITION TRANSCRIPT SOFTWARE

Oakland, Calif. (October 11, 2016) – Designation Station LLC, maker of Designation Station™ deposition transcript processing and management software, today announced the issuance of a US patent on its groundbreaking method for efficiently processing deposition transcripts.

“I am pleased to announce that Designation Station’s patent has been issued,” stated Christopher Grimm, creator of Designation Station. “As a veteran trial technician, I was frustrated with the long nights and challenges that came with prepping deposition transcripts and video for trial. Lawyers and paralegals were also plagued by this process and many hours were being wasted. Fueled by this frustration, I created a software tool to make everyone’s lives easier. In the short time Designation Station has been available to the public, we believe it is already changing the way deposition designations are handled. There is nothing else like it in the market.”

Using Designation Station software, users can easily collaborate on deposition transcripts with their colleagues all in one place. Users can also generate highlighted transcripts in seconds by simply copying and pasting page and line numbers, find errors, remove duplicates and overlaps, and perfectly format data, which can then be imported into trial presentation software.

“I look forward to continuing to advance and share our unique software with the legal industry, and changing the way deposition designations are handled in the future,” Grimm said in closing.

Designation Station is available to use today. Visit www.designationstation.com for more information.
